The wind eventually went to N.W. still blowing hard, with a very heavy sea. High seas and strong winds continued with very little intermission until our arrived at Hakodate Bombay October 9, and Singapore 22, on 17th, 6 p.m., where as the consumption of coal had been very excessive during the voyage, it was desmed more prudent to call to add to our stock of coal. We have received from Captain Devrez, of the Army Staff of Indo-China a brochure entitled Les Grandes Voies Commercia du Tonkin.' The title is not quite conprehensive, as Captain Devrez devotes considerable attention to the trade routes of Burmah and Siam and also to the Yangtszs route. His main object is to show the great superiority of the routes of Tonkin for communication with Yuunan and Kwangsi. Of this superiority there can be little doubt. The French possess a most valuable colony in Tonkin, both in A high class fertilizer for pot plants and itself as a field of exploitation and as a MAILS BY THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RALL. for use in the garden generally : it supplies | means of communication with China. ant in the original suit, Tang Tung Shang, sought to get a reversal of the judgment of the Acting Puisne Judge, finding Tang 1850 Yung Mau, the original plaintiff, was a legitimate grandson of Tang Alok. The same brilliant array of legal talent that has shed a lustre on the case hitherto appeared to-day, Mr Leach and Mr Robinson, instructed by Messrs Woiton and Descon, being for the plaintiffs, and Mr Francis, Q.C., and Mr Phillippo, instructed by Mr. Holmes, for the respondent. Owing to what Mr Robinson called pressure of legislative business', Mr Leach did not appear to-day, and the case was opened by Mr. Robinson, who enjoyed quite a field day: From the number of points which Mr Robinson stated he would bring before their Lordships the case in its present Mason pleaded guilty. He began to address the Court at 10.30 a.m. and up to the luncheon hour he hardly paused to take a breath. In the afternoon he came up like a giant refreshed and discoursed for an hour with burning elequence on the secient case of Jeremiah Smith and Elizabeth Jenkins, making, inter alia, a few brilliant remarks with reference to the late smented Hum. phrey Jenkins. . The learned country then went on to show that, in accordance with: the presciples enunciated in the case of deremish Smith and Elizabeth Jenkins, he ought to be allowed to put in a tombetone and mark it 'A' The Court meaned inclined to allow him to put in a whole cemetery, but it merely said - Well, well; go on to the next point. The learned counsel will probably keep going on to the next point for a few weeks to come. At the Bank of India, London, and China, the adjournment of the case in the afternoon Sir James Russell brought down the house by his seresatio question to Mr Bohe opined there was nothing whatever to bincon - Are you nearly this eed?

THE Agent of the O. and O. Co. informs us THE Sanitary Board meets to-morrow. that the Company's a. s. Belgic, with mails &c. from San Francisco to the 8th ultimo (via Honolulu), has arrived at Yokohama and leaves for this port to-morrow.

WE have received from Messrs Kelly and Walsh a most useful little book entitled Writing-deak Book. Every one who writes English is of course supposed to be acquainted with the English language, but the intracacies of that language are many, and even the best writer hesitates occasionally in the choice of a word or the use of a phrase, and feels the want of handy book of reference. The Writingdesk Book is meant to supply this want. A concise exposition of the principles of English composition and of the rules of English grammer, fills about one half of the book. This part has more than a mere reference value. It is well worth consecutive study by all who wish to refresh their knowledge the rules of composition and grammar acquired in youth-and who does not require such refreshing? The second part of ance, 1891. the book, the specially reference part, contains lists of synonyms and antonyms, a spelling list, rules for spolling, forms of address &c., all of which will doubtless be found very serviceable.

RESTRAINT OF MARRIAGE. - The Hamburg Law Courts have a nice question to decide. An old gentleman left 20,000 crowns each to his man-servant and cook on condition that if either married the whole sum should go to the one who remained single. The servants married each other, and secured the whole 40,000 crowns. A relative, who disapproves of this cutoness, now seeks to overthrow the will and obtain the return of the money on the ground that by the servants' marrying they have defeated the intention of the will. One would it agine that the servants ought to be allowed to keep the money for their ingenuity.

This act of courtesy was, it appears, much commented ou, although it was but a revival of the customary honour paid to previous Governors, until, upon the arrival of the Gordon Highlanders, the Colonel of that gallant Corps declined to permit the regimental band to play God Save the Queen, except in honour of a member of the Royal Family or of a Governor acting on behalf of the sovereign. estley, Staff Officer commanding, returned aspect of the military contribution ques- for whom he had great affection, had given to the former practice and ordered the usual bars of the National Anthem to be played.
